Big Data

In this course, we will cover both the theory and practice of Big Data, which will enable the students to participate in big data and analytics projects. It covers a wide range of topics from basics to more advanced concepts. Upon successful completion of this course, participants should be able to participate and contribute as a Data Science team member on a big data and other analytics projects.

Prerequisite: CS 330 or the consent of the instructor